- VII. Biographical note: Ithiel Town was born in Thompson, Ct. in 1784, son of Archelaus and Martha Johnson Town. As a youth he worked as a house carpenter and studied architecture in Boston in a school conducted by Asher Benjamin. His first important work was Center Church in New Haven, followed by Trinity Church, also on the New Haven Green. Among his later works were: the State House in New Haven, the Customs House in New York City, and Christ Church in Hartford, as well as capitol buildings in Indiana and North Carolina. The Greek Revival asylum still standing on the grounds of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York is also attributed to Town.

In 1820 Town was granted a patent for a truss bridge and became the best known bridge builder in the country. In 1829 he formed a partnership with Alexander J. Davis with offices in New York. He always, however, maintained a home in New Haven in which he gathered what was for many years the "finest collection of books relating to architecture and the fine arts assembled in the United States."

Town was a charter member of the National Academy of Design, having been appointed by S.F.B. Morse, with whom he traveled in Europe. In 1838 Town designed the obverse of a medal to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the founding of New Haven (See Hezekiah Augur collection). He died in New Haven in 1844 and is buried in the Grove Street cemetery. (For complete biography and references see the Dictionary of American Biography, Vol. 18, pp. 610-611)

Town had one daughter, Etha, who was born in Boston in 1807 and died in Cheshire in 1871. She was educated in Boston and at Mrs. Garfield's Seminary in New Haven where she graduated in 1826.

In 1826 Etha Town married William Thompson Peters (1805-1885). Mr. Peters received a B.A. degree from Yale in 1825 and his M.D. degree in 1830. He founded "Apothecaries Hall," a drugstore in New Haven and later moved to Cheshire where he was prominent in state and local politics. (For more information, see Yale Obituaries 1880-1890, pp. 285-86)

VIII: Analysis: The collection consists of one box of manuscript material plus 7 architectural drawings housed separately. Most of the papers fall between 1810 and 1873, with a few 20th century newspaper articles filed with the collection. The documents include: correspondence from well known New Haven figures; letters from Town to his daughter; architectural papers concerning Trinity Church and the State House and Town's bridges, including plans and patents; photographs and personal papers including an inventory of his library.

The papers of W.T. Peters complete the collection. Among them are correspondence, family records and a Bible.

The correspondence is filed alphabetically by writer. Town's letters and the other documents are filed chronologically. The number at right in brackets indicates the number of items in a folder.

A microfilm (No. 82) has been made of Folder G.
